II. Teaching

Courses Taught

Between 2006-2024, I taught the following undergraduate and graduate courses:

Undergraduate Courses – Music Theory and Aural Learning I, II, III, and IV, as well as Independent Studies (applied composition, harmony, orchestration).

Graduate Courses – Musical Styles, New Music Ensemble (course founder), Advanced Musicianship, Independent Studies (applied composition and analytical techniques).

Graduate Theses and Examination Committees

I served on the Graduate Thesis and Comprehensive Examination Committee of Garrett Douglas (Spring 2024), Nikkei Flores (2023), Sa Ra Park (2021), Tyler Seward (2019), Jeremy Logan, Charles Wolf, Andrew Fisher, Robert Sanchez, Felipe Garcia, Courtni Calhoun, and Renée Rodriguez (all between 2007-2018). Also, I was on the Graduate Comprehensive Examination Committee of Amanda Rowden (Spring 2024).

Student Accomplishments. Among all the students on whose graduate thesis committee I have served, nine have achieved remarkable results. They have read conference papers, and one of them has received a number of prestigious awards. Please follow the link for a detailed description of their accomplishments.

Courses Prepared and Curriculum Development

- Developed and proposed to the theory area curriculum and learning outcomes for Music Theory I, II, and III (2023, discussion pending).
- Developed a graduate course proposal entitled “The Craft of Harmonization” (2011). Although this course was not officially created, the curriculum committee recognized its merits for individual studies of graduate students.
- Founded and taught the graduate course Modern Music Ensemble (2008).
- Developed curricula and learning outcomes for the following graduate courses: Advanced Musicianship (2012/2013), Modern Music Ensemble (2008), Composition (independent studies), and Analytical Techniques (independent studies), between 2008-2013.
- Published original teaching materials in the Music Theory and Aural Learning Course Packets (Editor–Nico Schuler, Texas State 2006-2011). These include “Principles of Voice Leading”, “Harmonic Functionality of the Augmented Sixth Chords”, “Diatonic Harmonization of Typical Melodic Profiles, and “Tonicization of Diatonic Triads in Major and Minor Keys”.
- Devised teaching materials for all levels of undergraduate theory and ear training. These include but are not limited to original four-part harmonizations and modulations, melodic and harmonic dictations as well as scale and chord studies (2006-present)
- Integrate aspects of jazz and popular music in the theory and ear training curricula. These include but are not limited to singing jazz tunes; singing and playing jazz progressions; recognizing extended chords by ear; and improvising with an instrument or voice during a jam session.

Other

Currency of Course Content and Pedagogy.

As a member of the College Music Society and the Scientific Committee of the “Vlado Milosevic” International Conference (Banja Luka, Serbia), I stay up to date with the current trends and scholarship in music theory pedagogy. These are summarized in The Routledge Companion to Music Theory

Pedagogy (2020), the CMS Manifesto (2014), and the CMS Summit (2016). Current trends include using relevant materials and approaches that replace the conventional lecture format, engaging students in creative music making, incorporating aspects of pop and jazz music, making analysis by ear, developing practical skills through keyboard exercises, incorporating improvisation, cultivating curiosity, encouraging critical thinking, diversifying repertoires, and others. My course syllabi reflect the current learning outcomes and the listed trends.

Leadership Roles in Teaching and Instructional Activities

- Participated in a round-table discussion on music analysis by invitation from the French Society of Music Analysis (March 2023).
- Delivered eight invited lectures on pedagogical topics (between 2005-2021)–listed further down.
- Participated in the review of Concise Introduction to Tonal Harmony (2nd ed., W. W. Norton, 2019)
- Currently participate in the update of the theory proficiency exams for Music Theory II, III, and IV.
- Devised the part-writing example for TPE III and selected the creative excerpt from the musical literature (2023).
- Participate in discussions about updating the graduate diagnostic exam.
- Published teaching materials in the Texas State Theory and Aural Skills Course Packets (2006-2011).
- Use a variety of sources in addition to a textbook.
- Encourage critical thinking and creativity through questioning rigid concepts and formulating looser definitions.
- Emphasize principles instead of rules.
- Introduce the following activities: singing in four parts the melodies we harmonize and the dictations we do; sing and play classical and jazz outlines; use popular songs in the study of modal mixture; transcribe and analyze harmonic progressions of popular songs; play piano tests; attempt simple improvisation over II-V-I; watch and discuss performances in different genres; perform and improvise at a jam session at the end of the semester.

Teaching Methods. My teaching methods have been developed from the ideas of past and present artists, authors, and educators such as Jean Philippe Rameau, Hugo Riemann, Rimsky Korsakov, Arnold Schoenberg, Walter Piston, Bentzion Eliezer, Stepan Grigoriev, Dorothy Payne, Bert Ligon, Alexander Petkov, and others. I have devised materials on harmonization, modulation, cadence, altered dominant and subdominant chords, non-chord tones, cadential six-four, meter, basic formal structures in music, and other topics.

Instructional Modalities. Face-to-face teaching, online teaching, lecture format, free discussion, quick test on musical elements, question and answer games, exercises on the board, singing of four-part harmonizations and dictations, performance of piano tests, using online software in class (tonedear.com and teoria.com), performing and improvising at a jam session, transcribing pop songs by ear, and more.

III. Scholarly/Creative Activities

I am a published, recorded, and award-winning composer, as well as music theorist with an international outreach. My music has been performed on most continents. I was elected Chairman of the National Association of Composers, USA, for year 2009. Link:
